| Learning beyond the curriculum: Creating the schools of the future As the famous poet, William Butler Yeats, once said “Education should not be the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire.” As education leaders we are responsible for much more than just teaching our students numeracy and literacy. So how do we help students to develop as purposeful and effective citizens who know their role in the world? And how would this improve student learning and outcomes? Join us for a series of short TED-like talks on the twin challenges of how to build global competencies in our students, while also transforming the culture of schools to nurture global citizenship. | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Welcome by Lisa Paul AO PSM, Former Secretary of Education for the Commonwealth</li> <li>• Acknowledgement of country - Aunty Joan</li> <li>• Student Voice</li> <li>• Prof. Attila Brungs, Vice Chancellor, UTS</li> <li>• Anthony Mackay AM, CEO, Centre for Strategic Education</li> <li>• Prof. Fernando Reimers, Harvard University</li> <li>• Lisa Paul AO PSM to chair: Global Case Studies</li> <li>• Mehrdad Baghai, Chairman &amp; CEO, High Resolves</li> </ul> |

| 2. How can we equip young people to question the status quo, and imagine a more just future? Most young people are unaware of the unfair global distribution of wealth, power and entitlements. So how do we incorporate informed global perspectives into the curriculum? And why should we teach empathy, compassion and moral responsibility at school? Join a panel of educators and thought leaders to discuss how to equip young people to see beyond what is, to what could be.   | Chair: Verity Firth, Executive Director Social Justice, UTS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Freddy Mutanguha, Director of Peace Education, Aegis Trust, East Africa</li> <li>• Prof. Prashant Loyalka, Center Research Fellow, Stanford University, United States</li> <li>• Dr Nina Burrige, Associate Professor, UTS</li> <li>• Howard Barton, Principal, Metairie Park Country Day High School, New Orleans</li> <li>• Sarah Berg, Education Executive, US</li> </ul> |
| 3. Young people are the leaders of tomorrow but when does tomorrow start? When young people are given a platform, they are invincible, one only has to look at the Save Our Lives movement in America to see what they can accomplish. So how do we foster a culture where young people feel empowered to lead collective action? Join a panel of international change leaders to discuss how we can give our students the skills, knowledge and opportunities to lead the change they want to see.                                  | Chair: Roxy Pirnia, National Program Director, High Resolves America <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Roya Baghai, Executive Director, Videos for Change</li> <li>• Jack Carey, Founder, Live Oak Wilderness Camp, New Orleans</li> <li>• Amna Karra-Hassan, Co-founder and president of the Auburn Giants</li> </ul>   |
| 4. How can we foster a culture of personal accountability in our schools? Society can make young people feel that what they do does not matter; and as a result, students can believe that their choices will make no difference to the world around them. So how do we counteract this message to create a school culture where each and every student feels empowered to make a difference? Join a panel of international thought leaders to discuss how we can change school culture to increase the personal impact of students. | Chair: Lisa Paul AO PSM, Former Secretary of Education for the Commonwealth <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Karen Borg, Former CEO of Jobs for NSW</li> <li>• Julie Inman-Grant, E-Safety Commissioner</li> <li>• Dr Yuhyun Park, Founder &amp; CEO, DQ Institute, Singapore</li> <li>• Dr Sally Varnham, Professor of Law, UTS</li> <li>• Danitra Wansley, Program Director, High Resolves, New Orleans</li> </ul>  |
